

COMPANY HISTORY

Nelson Brothers was founded by two brothers Nels and Anton Nelson, immigrants from Denmark. Originally settling in Iowa, they worked installing irrigation lines for the farming industry. Years later they moved to Detroit, MI. to work in the manufacturing industry that promised higher pay. Unhappy with factory life, both brothers began working in the evenings and on weekends installing sewer pipe as freelance contractors. Then in 1925 they left the factory permanently to pursue their dream of self-employment and Nelson Brother Sewer & Plumbing was born.

In the 1950's ownership changed to Elmer and Edwin Nelson, the son's of Anton Nelson. The business expanded from its primary focus of sewer installations to include sewer maintenance. In the early 1960's the business further expanded its focus to include plumbing repairs and installations. In 1958 Nelson Bros. built its headquarters in Royal Oak, Mi where it remains today. In its 4th generation Nelson Bros. continues to be family owned and operated.
